OUR YEAR AT A GLANCE

CHAIRMAN AND AUDIT REPORT

It is my pleasure to present the 36th Annual Report of the Otago Community Hospice Trust Board.

I would like to acknowledge and thank our staff and volunteers for their efforts over the year. Despite the economic and personal challenges arising from Covid-19 and with 50% of our staff being impacted by Covid, we are pleased that no patients, visitors or staff have contracted Covid from OCH contact.

Whilst the need for community-wide lockdowns has diminished, the continued prevalence of Covid-19 infections across the community and the subsequent requirement for self-quarantining has impacted our people and in turn placed pressure on our operation. This has been compounded by the return of widespread flu infections, affecting the health of our employees and their families.

We know this time has been particularly hard for families who could not visit their loved ones in the inpatient unit during the lockdowns and the continued restrictions on visiting.

We are once again thankful for the support we have received from the Gordon Allen Foundation Trust. We are very fortunate to have this Trust to fall back on, given the challenges faced over the last 12 months.

After a year of Covid restrictions, we are now welcoming back our very important volunteer army which is wonderful. Sadly we have lost around 20% of our volunteers in the last year, mainly to retirement. A concerted effort is underway to recruit more volunteers.

Despite all of the challenges, excellent patient care has continued throughout and no services have needed to be cut. This is due to our management being innovative in the way services have been provided and to the high level of professionalism and commitment from our staff.

Tony McKewen, a long standing Trustee, has indicated he will be standing down at the AGM after 16 years of service. When Tony joined our board, it was at a critical time with significant internal issues and he stepped into the acting-CEO until the appointment of Ginny. He has been a tremendous asset to the trust over his tenure. I would like to thank Tony for his dedication over a long period of time and wish him well in his retirement.

On behalf of the Board, I would like to thank all our exceptional staff and volunteers for all they do to ensure our patients are supported to live and die well.

Finally, I would like to thank my fellow Board members, Ginny and her Management Team for the advice and support given over the past year.

I look forward to working with you all in person over the coming year now restrictions have been lifted.

STUART MCLAUCHLAN
CHAIRMAN

HOSPICE FINANCE FINANCIAL REPORT FY 2022

The Hospice's operating trust recorded a net deficit of $161,884 (excluding the $1.7m transfer to the Gordon Allen Trust) for the full year 2022.

Another financial year marked by continued disruption is the best way to describe the year, with Covid and inflationary pressures impacting greatly on the Hospice financial accounts. Covid impacted the operating revenue of all shop income, resulting in lower opening hours and patronage. Shop income has been integral to the financial success of the Hospice and will continue to be the financial bridge between contractual income from the DHB and the cash shortfall after operating expenditure is accounted for.

Inflation, as mentioned last year, has impacted greatly with rising costs of goods and services. The Hospice board has been proactive working hard to make sure staff are remunerated in a fair and equitable way for the good work that they do. Staff have also worked hard at creating efficiencies throughout the organisation.

We would like to thank and make special mention to all donors for their contributions and the ongoing support of our local community and volunteers.

As we move forward to 2023 the impacts of Covid lessen but we are still faced by challenges. Inflationary pressures are set to continue, staff shortages and funding shortfalls to operating income are key risks.

However, the Hospice remains resilient, fleet-footed in its operational model to cope with these stresses. It's in good financial heart thanks to the Hospice Foundation Trust which contributes monthly to the operating account, our network of regional shops and the efficiency and hard work of all staff.

CEO'S REPORT

First and foremost for the last 12 months, I would like to recognise the incredible efforts of our dedicated team which has come through the darkest hours of Covid without our service being compromised. It has been no small feat given at times we were extremely close to breaking point.

I would like to single out patient facing staff who have done some extra heavy lifting throughout Covid in terms of managing patient and whānau expectations, especially with our restricted visitor policy. It's been a hard road, and there have been some very tough conversations which our staff have handled extremely well. It has taken a toll.

While we are not out of the woods yet, we have settled into a pattern of precaution which continues to keep our staff and our patients safe. Covid has made us acutely aware of how vulnerable we are with our staff numbers - it wouldn't take much to knock our workforce out, impacting our ability to serve our patient population - and so we will continue with these precautions until we are in the clear.

With Covid as an ever-persistent backdrop, we have also been working on all fronts to ensure our team is looked after as best we can. We have worked very hard to ensure our people are paid equitably. Our nurses are paid at level with, and in some cases more than, their colleagues in the hospital.

We are very proud we have the capacity to acknowledge our staff and their expertise in palliative care in this financial manner - although this also has taken a toll on our finances.

Hand-in-hand with our efforts to ensure our staff are well paid, we have also developed a strong strategic imperative to develop our own. That means ensuring everyone at Hospice has professional development opportunities, including palliative focussed inhouse education sessions to ensure staff are constantly upskilling. Alongside this, we have developed a forward-thinking and dynamic career pathway for nurse practitioners and clinical nurse specialists making OCH an attractive career option for motivated nurses. This new senior nurse team is already having a terrific impact on our service delivery.

The challenge moving forward will be to keep our team building from within as much as possible as recruitment increasingly becomes a key issue across the nation, as well as keeping abreast of Te Whata Ora, Te Aka Whai Ora and the changes that lie ahead in the health eco-system.

I know our committed team and board of trustees can step up to the challenges in front of us, ensuring the Hospice retains its reputation for being a quality, equitable service for all those requiring specialist palliative care in Otago.

Despite the rough time had throughout the last financial year, there are always bright moments to celebrate, and I've chosen some of my favourite stories from the last year below.

CLINICAL DEVELOPMENTS

While our staff were dealing with the direct and knock-on effects of Covid, we also managed some amazing work at the coalface.

STRENGTHENING HOSPICE'S ARC OUTREACH

This last year has been one of crisis for the aged residential care (ARC) workforce. Given we work so closely with this workforce, we have built into our team increased support for the Otago ARC sector.

We are seeing a trend where New Zealanders are accessing residential care at a later stage, which means by the time they arrive at an aged care facility their stay will be shorter, but their need for expert care is more acute. We know expert nurses will need to be leaders in this sector to ensure our elderly get the appropriate care at end of life.

As a specialist provider, we take our responsibility to support partners in care very seriously. This is where our ARC Support Service team come into play, contributing significant education, advice and staff development in the ARC setting – and the ability to make a significant impact for both staff and patients.

We have had our ARC team working with the sector for five years now and in early 2022 we increased our ARC resources, pulling more nurses into the focused team. We also secured a fellowship from the Gordon Allen Foundation Trust and with that fund employed nurse Helena Lamb whose prime focus is developing palliative care skills in an ARC setting.

Helena is now under the ARC team's wing with on-the-ground training and will in the new year undertake a Diploma in Palliative Care, with a focus on aged care.

ENDING LIFE WELL PODCAST LAUNCHED

Denise van Aalst – our Kowhai Programme Coordinator – produced a 17-part podcast for carers called Ending Life Well. It was launched on June 16 and by the end of the month had over 600 downloads.

Ending Life Well takes our Kowhai programme and provides the key carer education content to listeners via short interviews with our educators. The content is very practical and developed with the carers in mind.

It was uploaded to several podcast platforms, and has been distributed via Te Kahu Pairuri o Aotearoa (Hospice New Zealand) as well as health providers around the country with the intention of being a valuable resource for all New Zealanders facing caring for a loved one.

We've had such exciting feedback from the release of the podcast, including this from respected palliative medicine specialist, Rod McLeod:

"Thank you so much for this, it is very exciting and a wonderful resource..."

VOLUNTEERS

We have been extremely lucky with volunteers over the last three decades – some of whom have been with us that whole time! But Covid, the job market and modern life are having an effect on our ability to boost our volunteer numbers and it is getting harder to recruit volunteers. And when we do recruit people, they are increasingly less available than previous volunteers.

This is a phenomena other organisations have been struggling to solve over the last few years and it is finally hitting OCH. This last year saw us testing out new ways of recruiting and then managing volunteers. As with everything, the first step is ensuring the community knows about the potential to volunteer with Otago Community Hospice so our social networks have been worked hard to rebuild our volunteer army. We ended the year with 20% less volunteers than we had in 2020, however the recruitment drive is starting to effectively rebuild, and we have high hopes that volunteer numbers will return to pre-covid levels by the beginning of 2023.

The volunteers continue to be a strong component of what makes Hospice work, and we all look forward to having the full contingent of volunteers back to all roles in the new financial year.

HOSPICE SHOP NETWORK

It's been a roller coaster year for the shops with Covid -19 requirements increasing the workload for staff hugely.

We had staff and volunteer vaccine mandates to navigate, shop closures under lockdown in August and Sept 2021 and a three month period of vaccine mandates for customers. All of this took its toll but the staff and volunteers came through bravely and just got on with the show as best they could.

The toughest period was February to May 2022 when most shops were running reduced hours and dealing with significant staff and volunteer absences. Looking back, it was very challenging. Looking forward we are in great shape staffing wise and are focusing on rebuilding our shops back to normal opening hours.

We closed the Cromwell shop in January 2022 after the end of our lease, and our inability to secure a new location. The shop was established in 2013 and over nine years had contributed $337,000 to our fundraising needs. It was a very sad day.

We continue to focus on the Alexandra shop as our key fundraiser for the Central Otago region, and continue to keep a watchful eye on potential buildings for other shops in the Central region.

Despite all the disruption, the sales for the year across the shop network totalled $1,933,829. Vogel St and Mosgiel continue to deliver high sales and great margins, with our three provincial stores doing incredibly well. We are excited about the year ahead and beyond.
